John Howe turkeys are locally produced in Tenterden, Kent. Their free range white and bronze turkeys will be a show stopper at your Christmas table.

Their ethos is that all their birds, both white and bronze, are free range and roam the grassy paddocks and meadows of their small family run farm. Birds that are happy and have access to covered yards, clean straw bedding, food and water means that ultimately their meat will be more tender and succulent. Their birds are slow growing, old fashioned breeds, reared to full maturity and fed on a natural, cereal based diet, free from antibiotics and growth promoters.

Each turkey is wrapped in greaseproof paper and presented in a carry home box, along with a sprig of rosemary, vacuum-packed giblets, a recipe leaflet with cooking instructions and a pop-up cooking timer Everything you need to cook your turkey perfectly on Christmas day.
